

PART III

A person who is broadly educated in [one era] may be widely ignorant [50 years later] unless [s/]he has made a conscious, continuous, and determined effort to keep abreast with development of knowledge and of thought.

— W. E. B. DuBois